3-ALARM FIRE GIRLS IN PANIC

MINISTERS APPLAUD TENNEY AS PREACHER

LEADER OF NATIONALS SCORES IN BASEBALL TALK AT METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Captain Fred Tenney of the Boston National baseball team appeared in a black frock coat and looking much like a student from some theological seminary, talked to the members of the Methodist ministers' conference in Wesleyan Hall to-day.

He spoke on the general subject of "The Moral Standing of Baseball Players." Incidentally he made a three-base hit with all the preachers who heard him.

Evidently the leaders of the Boston Methodists had come to the conference under pressure. He didn't look confident of his ability to hang up a hot liners that some of the ministers would ready to bat to him. But he got some good strong right foot on first ball and cracked a few of everything that came his way.

Scores in First Inning.

"I think the baseball profession can show a greater percentage of happy lives and happy marriages than any other profession," said Captain Tenney. "Three fingers of the right hand were inserted between the second and third buttons of the frock.

"The training of a successful ball player," the captain went on, "reminds the cutting out of even the slightest dissipation. It is up to each man to be at the field every day to put forth his supreme effort.

"The ministers rose to the "out" and the "up" and leaned forward in expectancy of seeing a homer right down the fire hat. They got it.

"Baseball players respect and look up to their wives—their wives are their idols and their children full of parental love and admiration. I have met no known one baseball player who figured in a row result."

Applause for Captain Ten.

Captain Tenney said this with unconscious dignity. He spoke in a way as one proud of a fact. His personal disappeared. He was talking then of the sport. In the profession he has lived in for many years, and he impressed his hearers. They applauded his hit and brought back the blush.

"When baseball first became popular," he went on, "there was a rowdy element among the players. Now the game is being played upon a professional basis that is sure to stay.

"The moral standing of players at the present time is steadily improving. Ninety per cent. of them are taking care of their money. Better and larger classes of people attend the games.

Turn Toward the Church.

"We baseball players have a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde existence. On the field we are all sworn enemies and one would expect that after a game the clubhouse would be a rough house, but you will find the victors being heartily congratulated by the vanquished.

"I think the church-going element is on the increase. The Catholic boys get up at 6 o'clock to attend mass.

"In the West where Sunday is celebrated as a holiday the officials find that ball games are a safeguard against the dangers that lurk in the open saloons."

This remark near the close of Captain Tenney's address brought Dr. C. A. Crane forward with a question. "Would you explain your attitude on Sunday ball playing?" the minister asked the ball player.

Replies to Crane.

Captain Tenney looked curiously at his questioner, colored for a moment, and then covered first with no hesitancy in his manner. It was frank.

"I own a part of the baseball club," he said. "Those men have to go out and play. Would it be fair for me, who is a part owner of a team, to ask men to play on Sunday and not take part myself, yet accept a share of the profits?"

Captain Tenney was not answered. He was applauded heartily at the close of his little talk, given a vote of thanks and spent some time after in telling stories of the diamond.

COURT SAYS BURTON MUST GO TO JAIL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The Supreme Court of the United States today denied the motion for a re-hearing in the case of former Senator Joseph Ralph Burton of Kansas, convicted of practicing before the postoffice department while a Senator of the United States.

He will now have to serve six months' imprisonment in the Iron county, Missouri, jail and pay the $2,500 fine assessed by the Federal court at St. Louis.

To-day's action disposes finally of the case and removes any possible chance of Burton's legally escaping punishment.

SIR RICHARD TANGYE DEAD.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Sir Richard Tangye, head of the engineering firm of Tangyes of Birmingham, London, Johannesburg, Sydney, etc., is dead.

MISS POWER EXPLAINS WHY SHE RESIGNS

Miss Elizabeth A. Power, president of the Free Home of Consumptives at Dorchester, in a letter to Mayor Fitzgerald and the board of aldermen, given out to-day at the City Hall, that her principal reason for resigning as second trustee of the Boston Consumptives' Hospital, to which place she was recently appointed, is a feeling that the care of the Free Home is her "first and chief duty."

"I believe," Miss Power says, "that I can give greater assistance to Boston and to consumptives by concentrating my energies for the opening of the new, large building of the Free Home for Consumptives. There, as in the present home, we will always welcome consumptives free of charge as far as we are able to grant accommodations."

Mayor Will Preside at Faneuil Hall to START MORAN CAMPAIGN

Prominent Democrats from All Over State to Have Seats on Platform.

Principal Speeches to Be Made by Leader and by the Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of Boston will preside at the rally in Faneuil Hall to-morrow night, when the nomination of John E. Moran of Boston, for Governor, and E. Gerry Brown of Brookline, for Lieutenant-Governor, will be ratified. It is planned to make the meeting a rousing affair.

Many of the leading Democrats of the State, besides all the candidates on the State ticket, have signified their intention of sitting on the platform. George Fred Williams, it is expected, will follow Mayor Fitzgerald as speaker and Mr. Moran and Mr. Brown will make the principal addresses.

To Appear in Big Cities.

Bookings for Moran and Candidate Brown have already been arranged in many of the large cities. Friday night both will speak in Pall River and New Bedford and Saturday night both will be at Lawrence and Lowell.

Next Monday night there will be a grand county rally at Worcester, next week Tuesday the two candidates will appear at Springfield and Holyoke, and the following night at Northampton and Greenfield.

It is planned to send Mr. Williams on an automobile trip through the Berkshire cities and towns, speaking several times during the day in the small places and at night in two cities.

Mr. Brown and some other good speaker will do the automobile stunt through the Cape.

Mr. Moran says to-day that he is willing to speak twice a day if his physician will permit him to do so.

District Attorney Moran insists that in his campaign there shall not be expended a single dollar tainted with corporations, and regarding this point he authorized his committee to make this definite statement:

"In compliance with the wishes of the Democratic candidate for Governor, John E. Moran, no money will be received from corporations, nor from stock brokers nor from any persons connected therewith, either as officers, agents or attorneys."

To Visit All the Cities.

In view of the fact that the State is better equipped with street railway facilities than in 1892, the task of bringing the candidate and the people together is much easier, so that all the cities being centres of street railways, each one of the thirty-three municipalities with adjoining towns will be able to see and hear the candidate.

At the meeting of the Democratic State Committee to-night at the Revere House the complete plans will be arranged and a speakers' bureau is now being established.

In addition to the Democratic effort, there is to be activity along other lines. The Independence League will also conduct a campaign, while the Prohibitionists are to make their fight in their own way.

The offer of Thomas W. Lawson to make an individual campaign is to be accepted, but his offer to solicit funds has been rejected.

50 MINERS DEAD; SCORES TRAPPED BY EXPLOSION

THIRTY OF TWO HUNDRED ENTOMBED RESCUED IN BRITISH HORROR.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—A mining horror of unusual magnitude occurred at the Wyndham colliery near Durham shortly after midnight, and it is feared that at least fifty are dead.

An explosion entombed nearly 200 men, eighty of them being buried in the workings where the accident occurred. Rescuers who went into the mine soon after the explosion succeeded in bringing out thirty men alive. Twenty-four bodies were also recovered. Search is being made for the rest of the entombed men, but it is feared many of them have perished.

OBJECT TO LYNN GRADE CROSSINGS

The Board of Railroad Commissioners gave a hearing to-day on the protest of the city of Lynn against the proposed grade crossings of the Saugus branch of the Boston & Maine railroad in that city. Ex-Governor John L. Bates appeared for the city, and the corporation was represented by Attorney Hurlburt.

The one witness examined to-day was Expert John W. Ellis of Providence, who entered general objections to the proposed crossings on the grounds that the plans presented were antiquated and not adequate to meet modern demands and necessities.

No figures were submitted by the witness, but he explained that the plans submitted were generally objectionable, and suggested that the road have leave to submit others.

$1,000 TO HEBREW INSTITUTE.

About $1,000 was subscribed at a meeting of the Hebrew Literary Association in the Baldwin Place Synagogue last night for the erection of a Hebrew Institute in Boston.

EVANGELIST SAM JONES DIES ON TRAIN

LITTLE Rock, Ark., Oct. 15.—Rev. Sam Jones, the noted evangelist of Cartersville, Ga., died of heart disease early to-day on an eastbound Iron Mountain train at Perry, Ark.

Mr. Jones' family was with him. The body was brought to Little Rock and taken in charge by an undertaker.

The Rev. Samuel Porter Jones was born in Chamberlain County, Ala., October 16, 1847. He resided in Cartersville, Ga., when a young man, and was admitted to the bar in 1869. Mr. Jones had a brilliant future as a successful and prominent lawyer, but soon ended his professional career in law. He later became converted to religion, and in 1872 was ordained as a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

THUGS KNOCK OUT, ROB MAN

The police of the Dudley station are to-day looking for two thugs, who assaulted and robbed Truman Shirer of No. 55 Pine street, last night. Shirer told the police that while he was walking near the corner of Roxbury and Hawkins streets, on his way home, he was accosted by two men who asked him for a smoke. He gave a cigar to the younger of the two, and the other struck him a blow on the head which rendered him unconscious.

Then the men robbed him of his gold watch and several dollars in change.

Shirer was found by a policeman of the Dudley street station and taken to the station, where his wounds were dressed. He described the men to the police.

Blaze in Big Milton Flour Mill and Granary Causes Intense Excitement—Quickly Got Under Control, but Employes of Neighboring Establishments Had Bad Scare.

In a three-alarm fire that partially destroyed the big flour and grain mills of Samuel Gannett, on Adams street, Milton, a few minutes before 1 o'clock to-day, women employes of nearby establishments, including the Walter Baker Chocolate Mills across the street, were for a time thrown into a panic.

Help was called from Boston, and the nearby Dorchester fire apparatus was ordered out by Commissioner Wells.

Mystery surrounds the origin of the blaze. It apparently started in the engine room, but no fire had been built there during the day.

The flames forced their way into the grain elevator where a large amount of stores took fire. The firemen were several times driven from their posts by grain-dust explosions.

Next door to the mills is the dressmaking establishment of Miss Annie J. Morrissey. The ten young women employed there were compelled to flee when huge volumes of smoke poured through the partitions.

CALL HELP FROM BOSTON.

Three alarms were sounded in Milton, bringing all of the apparatus of that town. At the same time, help was asked from Boston, and three Dorchester engines were sent by Acting Chief Grady. Fire Commissioner Wells of Boston made a record breaking automobile trip to the scene.

There were only two or three people about the mill when the fire was discovered. Immediately the alarm was given, but before the engines arrived the elevator was a mass of flames. In quick succession other alarms followed, until Pierce square and Adams street were filled with apparatus.

It looked for a time as though the mills would be destroyed.

At the time the fire started all of the employes except J. A. Doherty, the foreman, were at lunch. Mr. Gannett and the foreman were nobbled at the office when they smelled smoke. They discovered the fire, which at that time had reached the elevator. Immediately the two men gave the alarm and started rushing up the burning mass of the stable in the rear. All the animals were saved.

DAMAGE ABOUT $10,000.

It is estimated that the damage will be about $10,000. "I haven't the slightest idea what caused the fire" said Mr. Gannett to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "We had no fire in the engine room at the time, and it was a dark, lowering afternoon. The elevator is pretty well burned out and the top part grain is soaked through. The damage can hardly be told until an examination is made, but it may reach $10,000.

DEFIANCE OF UNION LABOR IN STATE HOUSE GILDING

"I regard the matter of gilding the State House dome as a move in favor of one who stands as an opponent to organized labor and in favor of a man who has shown him self to be our bitter foe," said John T. Cashman, business agent of the Building Trades Council, in a statement to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

Believe that somebody is interested more than is the State of Massachusetts, and that the contract which was given to N. J. Finney has been known for some time as a man who would prefer non-union men for his workmen. Riveters, sailors and painters who were not journeymen have been in his employ. Such conditions do not make for the best work. I believe the officials of the State should see to it sober and industrious men should do the work on our State House dome.

"I cannot make out the full significance of the situation as it is at the present time. It is close to election, though; perhaps that may be named as a cause. The public demands under any conditions what the public's due. The public is not served when contracts are let to men who have used the Finney tactics.

Sergeant-at-Arms Remington did not do himself any favor by organized labor when he gave that contract to Finney. He has shown that he is opposed to union labor by his actions in giving this large contract to a man who cannot get a union man to work for him.

Contrary to reports emanating from New York, the strike of the goldbeaters has not been settled. Conferences are being held in many cities and it is said that the outlook for an amicable settlement are very bright. James Towle, national president of the goldbeaters' union, stated today that there is a possibility of the strike being settled within a few days.

The national strike, which has been on for ten weeks, was brought about by a demand for a slight increase in wages and a demand for the closed shop. The result has been a shortage of American gold leaf. Many of the dealers have imported large amounts from Europe, while many others have been obliged to forego contracts.

LOST WIFE RESTORED TO MAINE STATE SECRETARY

MRS. BOYD IS FOUND AT BRUNSWICK

Husband Had Been Searching for Her Near Boston Since Saturday.

Mrs. Byron Boyd, the beautiful wife of Maine's Secretary of State, who left a private hospital in Brookline on Saturday evening and for whom her husband and friends had been frantically searching since, has been found at Brunswick, Me.

This information came in a telegram to Mr. Boyd, who had gone to Reading, to which place his wife had been traced. He immediately returned to this city and got into communication with his friends and relatives in Maine, so as to verify the report and get additional facts.

It was said that Mrs. Boyd, who was being treated for a nervous breakdown and who had been longing for her husband and children, thought she was strong enough to undertake the journey to her home in Augusta, but found the trip too much for her strength and became confused in her weakness.

Took Portland Train.

Mrs. Boyd, after being at Reading and at Lynn, came to Boston, it was learned, about 6 o'clock last evening. She took a train for Portland and remained there last evening, at the Congress Square Hotel. Early to-day she went to Brunswick, where she telephoned her father, Congressman Burleigh, and he sent Mrs. Staples, a friend to meet here.

The two women left Brunswick at 11:30 for the home of Mrs. Boyd in Augusta, where she was due to arrive at 12 p.m. Her husband, upon the receipt of this information, arranged to leave for home on the 2:15 train this afternoon.

Mrs. Boyd is the daughter of Congressman Edward C. Burleigh of Maine, and is one of the most popular young matrons of that State. She was taken ill while on a visit to her father in Washington and was removed to the private hospital of Dr. Walter Channing of Brookline. She was recovering, and it is thought her anxiety to return to her husband and children led her to leave the hospital before her strength enabled her to travel to her home.

Search by Automobile.

Scouring the country in an automobile, her husband had been looking for his wife ever since he was informed that she had left the Brookline institution. He did not retire until 1 o'clock this morning and he was up at 8 o'clock and off to Reading to take up her trail there and find her at any cost.

Mrs. Boyd spent Saturday afternoon driving. Early in the evening she was missed, and Dr. Wallace M. Knowlton was informed of the fact. It was learned that Mrs. Boyd had left a carriage and was driven toward Cambridge.

During her, the hospital officials and the police who were asked to aid in the search, found that she reached Harvard square at 6:45 and from there took a trolley car to Reading, becoming confused. It is thought, through exhaustion.

Dr. P. Bradley of Reading saw her in the street about 10 o'clock, wandering almost near his home, and nothing but there an hour later he took her in and she remained there over night. She told the doctor her identity and he, thinking that she was able to care for herself, allowed her to leave yesterday morning.

Lost Trace in Wakefield.

Mr. Boyd reached Reading yesterday. He ascertained that she had sought to hire a carriage in Reading in the forenoon and not being able to procure one had gone to Wakefield, where she applied at a livery stable there, being again refused. Trace of her was lost in Wakefield, and it is not known where she wandered from there under the governing impulse which seems to be a desire to return to her home in Augusta.

The anxious husband took quarters at Young's, but he has only been there long enough to get a few hours rest since he began the hunt for his wife. He drove from there to the North Station in an automobile and from there took the train in Reading to resume his search to-day.

Up to six months ago Mrs. Boyd was in excellent health, but while on a visit to the house of her father, Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh, in Washington, she was stricken by a slight nervous prostration. This affected her nerves so seriously that her physicians advised her to take a course of treatment in Dr. Channing's sanitarium.

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN WHO WAS LOST AND IS FOUND.

WOMEN WEEP AS BROUWER TELLS STORY

Physician Accused of Poisoning Wife Breaks Down on Witness Stand.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Dr. Frank Brouwer, accused of poisoning his wife, was suddenly called to the witness stand in his own defence to-day at Tom's River, N. J., and he had only been testifying a few minutes when the big physician broke down and cried to the jury:

"Gentlemen, I have always been a true and faithful husband and a good father to my children. I had worked and tried to get higher up in the world only for their sakes. It is a fact that I never gave to my wife for money, that I ever touched a penny of her little estate. The house we lived in is her house. I gave her and paid for out of my own earnings. When Elliott never stated that I had ever sold to me that I had sold it. I had tried to and wanted to divorce her, she lied. When Hemphill Dyer says I ever threatened to strike my wife, he lies.

The big physician broke down completely and sobbed. Women in the court room also cried softly and for five minutes court was unable to resume.

9 KILLED IN COLLISION.

ARIS, Oct. 15.—Nine persons were killed and nineteen were injured in a railroad collision yesterday. The train was standing at the station when a locomotive crashed into it.

LEHNEMAN ON PAROLE; SEEK EXTRADITION

Detective on Maine Border Hunting Captain Colby of Smugglers' Craft.

PHILLIPS STILL AT LARGE

James B. Lehneman, the Chinese smuggler whose alleged operations in connection with Goodman Phillips, now supposed to be in England, have resulted in his being sought for weeks by the United States authorities, and who recently tried to land forty-two Chinamen in this country from the schooner Frolic, has been paroled at Halifax, N. S.

Meanwhile Inspector Farrell, attorney for the local immigration officials, and the attorney for Lehneman are on their way to Boston, where they will thresh out the question of Lehneman's extradition in the United States court here. Inspector Farrell and Lehneman's attorney left Halifax at 7:40 this morning and are due in Boston at 9:05 to-night.

Hold Valuables as Security.

While Lehneman is out on parole pending the decision as to his extradition, the Nova Scotia officials are holding $1,100 in cash and several valuable diamond rings and pins as surety of his being found when he is wanted.

Working in the belief that Captain Hebert F. Colby of the Frolic is making his way toward Canada, Secret Service agents are to-day at all points in Northern Maine where he would be likely to cross the line. Inspector Schell has received a tip that Colby has been sighted that way.

Considerable disappointment is felt by the authorities over the fact that although the steamer Dalhome, on which it was supposed Goodman Phillips was a passenger, reached Liverpool yesterday, no word has been received that he had been arrested.

Colonel George B. Billings, immigration commissioner, was at his office on Long wharf yesterday expecting to get word. He had a long talk with Chinese Inspector Augustus P. Schell regarding the case. They are satisfied that Phillips sailed from St. John's, N. F., on the Dalhome on September 7, but it is now feared that he has eluded the English officers.

Police are still shadowing the Colby home in South Boston. On Friday Mrs. Colby is said to have received a letter from him mailed at Quincy.

PLANS WILL BE CARRIED OUT SAYS HEARST

Candidate Addresses Steuben County Farmers in Up-State Canvass.

BATH, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Steuben County farmers heard William Randolph Hearst here to-day at the opening of the third week of his up-State canvass.

The meeting was made up almost exclusively of Steuben County farmers and their families. Many of the soldiers from the State Home were present.

"Many people have asked me if I will carry out my plans if elected," said Mr. Hearst. "My answer has been that the Ryans and the Belmonts and the Rockefellers and the Diggers and all the others of that stripe know that I will carry out my plans and that's why they are fighting me so.

The speaker said it was time to abandon government of the people by the corporations and for the corporations, and to turn the management of affairs from the hands of corporation lawyers to honest men, laboring men, farmers, professional men, who are fully capable of running it honestly and efficiently.

"I am not covering the State merely to get votes," said Mr. Hearst, "but to come here to learn the needs and the conditions of the people so that I may know better how to look after the interests of the people."

In response to an inquiry, Mr. Hearst this afternoon issued a statement declaring that if elected Governor he would continue to work for the recount of the New York City vote, and hoped a Legislature would be elected this Fall that would pass a recount bill.

ARRAIGN CAHILL; RAUSCH BETTER

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 15.—Patrick Cahill, who shot Adam J. Rausch, the game warden, in Rowley yesterday, was arraigned in police court to-day, charged with assault with intent to kill. The case was continued until Saturday. Cahill was sent to jail.

Israel Manchester, who was gunning with Cahill, has been released on bail.

Rausch is reported quite comfortable at the Anna Jaques Hospital, but his recovery is doubtful.

LONG MURDER ATTEMPT CASE GOES TO JURY

MRS. LONG TESTIFIES

Evidence in Rebuttal to Offset the Husband's Charges Against Wife.

The introduction of evidence in the case of Robert H. Long of Chelsea, charged with attempting to murder his wife, Jennie H., was concluded this forenoon in the Superior Court before Judge Bond. Lawyer Kiernan, for the defendant, asked for acquittal in his argument, on the ground that Long was not responsible for his acts at August 28, the time of the shooting, because of the effect of his wife's actions upon his mind. Assistant District Attorney Richardson followed with the prosecution's side, after which the case was placed in the hands of the jury.

Mrs. Long was a cashier in a booth at Wonderland Park. On August 27, at night, Long declared that he had tracked her to East Boston, where he lost her about midnight. The next day he called her home by a telephone message and shot her on the street.

In rebuttal the government called Mrs. Grace A. Phillips of No. 31 Washington avenue, Chelsea, where Mrs. Long boarded the two weeks before the shooting. Mrs. Phillips testified that on the night of August 27 Mrs. Long came home about 11:20 and went to her room, and that she was up for breakfast in the morning.

Mrs. Long told the court that she did not go to East Boston that evening. She denied the acts charged by her husband.

EACH SAYS THE OTHER WOOED; SEEK DIVORCE

Fair Petitioner Tells Court She Married Suitor to Get Rid of Him.

With 342 divorce suits on the calendar for trial and less than a month in which to try them, Judge White to-day opened the October term of the Suffolk County Divorce Court.

Two hundred and four of the 342 suits are on the uncontested list. It is not expected that more than half of them will be reached this session.

The first case called to-day was that of Sybil A. Perham, a pretty Nova Scotian, who asked the court to annul her marriage to Harry R. Perham, recently of Medford, but now of Whitman, on the grounds that two years ago, when she was only eighteen years old, she had been forced into a marriage ceremony by her father through fear.

As her lawyer expressed it, "Perham married in fear and faith, but she married in fright."

Married Through Fear.

"He was always urging me to marry him," testified Mrs. Perham, "and I was always standing him off. One night two years ago last July, after I had refused to become his wife, he said, 'You'll be sorry for this,' and he said it in such a way that I believed he intended to kill me, so I went out with him to a justice of the peace and we got married.

"As soon as the ceremony was over I made some excuse to him and went home without him. I never intended to live with him, never have and never shall live with him."

"But why did you marry him?" asked Judge White.

"To get rid of him," answered the witness, whereupon everybody, including the judge, laughed.

Later in the day Mr. Perham, who had not intended to contest the suit, appeared in court and demanded a hearing.

Makes Stout Denial.

He denied emphatically and categorically the allegations of his wife that he had coerced her into marriage. In fact, according to his version of the circumstances leading up to the marriage ceremony, it was his wife who urged him to the courting.

"After getting me to marry her, Your Honor," he said, "she declined to live with me or have anything whatever to do with me. It was the greatest shock I ever had in my life.

"I'm just as anxious as she is to have the marriage annulled, and if the court doesn't see its way to annul it for her I'm ready right now to annul it for myself, which I believe entitles me to an absolute divorce."

In the nullity proceedings decision reserved.

TO FORM IRISH SINGING CLUB

Boston is to have an Irish choral society. The Hub of the Universe contains more men and women of Irish blood, in proportion to its population, than any other city in the world, except possibly Dublin, Limerick and Tralee.

The Knights of St. Brendan, an organization of Kerrymen, proposes to fill the long-felt want. In Appleton Hall, yesterday, President Jeremiah Murphy in the chair, the knights voted that the proceeds of their annual concert of Irish music, to be given this year on the evening of Tuesday, November 13, in Appleton Hall at Boylston and Berkeley streets, be devoted to the establishment of a choral society.

The singing organization will be directed by Charles F. Forrester, who has already selected a number of voices from among the Knights and Ladies of St. Brendan.

BERTHA KRUPP, RICHEST GIRL IN THE WORLD, A BRIDE TO-DAY

BERTHA KRUPP, RICHEST GIRL IN WORLD, WHO WAS MARRIED TO-DAY

Kaiser Attends Wedding of Owner of $200,000,000 Fortune to Poor Man.

Fifty Workmen, Representing the 63,000 Employes, Among the Guests.

ESSEN, Germany, Oct. 15.—In the little chapel erected especially for the purpose on the magnificent grounds of the Krupp mansion, the religious ceremony was performed to-day which made Bertha Krupp, the possessor of a fortune of $200,000,000, the bride of Lieutenant Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, a penniless German noble.

The civil ceremony, which legally made the couple man and wife, was performed Saturday afternoon. Although the ceremony to-day was performed in the presence of Kaiser William, representatives of many noble families and aristocratic personages generally, simplicity was the keynote of the whole wedding. Despite the great wealth of the bride, there was no display or extravagance either in her costume or the decorations. Mingling with the aristocratic and royal wedding guests were deputations of workingmen representing the different employes of the great Krupp industries.

Fifty workingmen were in the wedding party, and they attended not only the ceremony but the wedding banquet.

Party Walked to Chapel.

The only extravagance in connection with the wedding was the erection of the special chapel. It was dedicated a few days ago and will remain standing until after the wedding next Spring of Barbara Krupp, the younger sister of Bertha, when it will be razed. To-day the chapel was tastefully but not lavishly decorated.

From the Krupp mansion the wedding party passed on foot to the chapel. Kaiser William, who had arrived on a special train just in time for the ceremony, took his place near the altar and the services began.

Franklin Krupp deviated from the usual custom of wearing a white wedding gown, and her dress was a simple affair of crepe de chine of lilac color. Two, instead of the eight pages usually used at fashionable weddings, bore her train. The bridegroom, according to German custom, wore evening dress.

Kissed by the Kaiser.

When the ceremony had been concluded, Kaiser William, wearing the uniform of a field marshal, saluted the bride, kissing her on both cheeks. He then congratulated the groom and spoke to Madame Krupp.

A simple wedding banquet was served in the dining-room of the Krupp mansion. In an eloquent speech, in which he dwelt upon his friendship for the late Alfred Krupp, Bertha's father, the Kaiser proposed the health of the young couple.

Following the banquet came an unusual ceremony, which well illustrated the sentiment of the Krupp family in always recognizing its humble origin. Bertha Krupp's great-grandfather, founder of the family, was the village blacksmith. Amid the guests at the wedding of the Krupp works still stands the humble smithy with the anvil at which this ancestor worked a century ago. A bronze bust of the first Krupp stands on the spot where he toiled as a blacksmith. It was to this spot that the bride made a pilgrimage to-day to place a wreath on the bronze bust of the former blacksmith. Immediately after this the couple started on their honeymoon.

Trousseau Cost $250.

In arranging her trousseau the bride showed the same devotion to simplicity as in all the details of the wedding. It consists of three evening dresses, one wedding gown and a riding costume. One mantle for evening wear and another evening mantle for service in the day time completed the trousseau. The whole cost $250, but while avoiding extravagance in the wedding arrangements, Fraulein Krupp's personal expense in making her wedding apparel is to be remembered by the fact that an occasion to be remembered by the 40,000 employed in the Krupp plants. A special donation of $250,000 was made to the fund established by the Krupp family to provide pensions for aged and disabled workmen, as well as to their widows and children.

In addition, wedding banquets at which every employe of the Krupp works and all members of their families will be entertained at the expense of the bride will be held, extending over a period of a fortnight. It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons will join in celebrating the wedding at these banquets.

By the wedding settlement Lieutenant von Bohlen-Halbach will receive an income of $100,000 annually, the grant being unconditional. Aside from this, however, the bride retains absolute control of her property, which yields an income of $4,000,000 annually.

Gifts from Royalty.

Among the wedding presents received by the young couple were contributions from several royal personages.

Kaiser William presented a golden cup inscribed with his initials and Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey sent a handsome vase to the bride.

Lieutenant von Bohlen, who was connected with Germany's diplomatic corps at the Vatican, brought from Rome with him an autographic letter from Pope Pius X., addressed to the bride, wishing her happiness and invoking the divine blessing on the couple.

Madame Krupp's wedding gift was an automobile and four thoroughbred horses. The Essen town council gave a silver vase, and the Krupp works and the technical staff of the Krupp Institutions presented a golden scroll, showing in silver figures the sites of the companies throughout the world since 1850.

GOV. GUILD TO OPEN CAMPAIGN AT LAWRENCE

Republican Leaders, Alarmed, Abandon Their Policy of Silence.

"SAVE DRAPER" IS THE CRY

The Republican State Committee has abandoned its policy of silence and fun which was followed some time ago, and is now seeking out in the open to lift a head wherever it can find one.

Governor Guild, who was going to stand on his dignity and refuse to stump the State, now finds it necessary to say something.

On Wednesday night His Excellency will go to Lawrence, where, in the Opera House, he will deliver an address entitled "Why Is Republican Victory Necessary?" Following Governor Guild will come the overtime bill and the Governor's part in rewarding a man who voted for it.

G. O. P. Leaders Alarmed.

Just now Colonel Daly of Waltham, who has the booking of all the Republican stars, has fixed only one date, and for the Governor, but he will be a great deal in demand for the next few days, as a big gun. Bernhardt, has been secured to do a two-night stand in Lowell, but the Governor is to be at home one night and the two-night stand and Draper, instead of one, is to be at all of the Republican rostrum.

Enough dates have already been created to keep the Governor and Draper busy, and special meetings for both Guild and Draper will be arranged as fast as the organization of labor has caused a change in the plans of the Republican leaders. Together with the Governor, Guild will go out first, and he will be followed by Lieutenant Governor Draper.

Committee Has Hands Full.

Each congressional candidate will be left to his own devices, and the State committee feels it has its hands full with the Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

Aside from the two candidates there is a great demand for Senator Lodge and a great demand for his services as well, as between the two he will headquarters, so between the two he will be busy.

The activity among the Democrats so far is confined to candidates. Many letters of acceptance and the prospect of a tour of the State by him has aroused the Republican leaders so that there is something doing. Fiber Guild, but it all sounds like "Save Draper" is the motto of the campaign.

TO EXPEL ALL UNION MEN WHO VOTE FOR LANE

Brewery Workers Deal Hard Blow to Republican Nominee in 11th District.

Senator Daniel W. Lane's attempt to win a seat in Congress from the Eleventh district received a serious setback yesterday, when the Brewery Workers' Union voted to expel from membership any man who advocates the election or assists the candidacy of Senator Lane.

Senator Lane has the presidents record for voting for corporations on Beacon Hill, as well as voting against all labor measures, and the action was taken by the Brewery Workers' Union at its meeting in the Central Labor Union building. It is not only employed in the eleventh district, but has members reside and vote in the district.

MAGICIAN AT JORDAN'S STORE

Causing roses to grow from apparently empty vessels by a few waves of her delicate hand, changing a pack of soiled bills into fine crisp currency and producing from glass tubes, which were filled with water, a number of live goldfish, fully tinted ribbon, Madame Adelaide Medlar, Boston's leading exponent of the art of legerdemain, held the interest of the audience in the auditorium of Jordan, Marsh & Company's store yesterday afternoon. Madame Medlar made a deep study of the arts that have made the Hindoos famous magicians and succeeded in accomplishing the most difficult of their alleged feats.

COUNTRY HOUSE GUEST ROBBED OF $500 GEMS

SECOND STORY MEN SUSPECTED OF THEFT IN H. I. PARSONS'S PLACE AT STOCKBRIDGE.

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 15.—Police and detectives of this and neighboring towns and cities are to-day hard at work seeking a clue to the second story robbers who on Saturday night stole $500 worth of diamonds and pearls from the country residence of Henry I. Parsons of New York in Stockbridge.

The pearls and diamonds were the property of Mrs. C. R. Newkey of London, England, who has been a guest of Miss Parsons for several weeks. Several of the missing jewels had other than intrinsic value and will be impossible to replace.

How the thief or thieves broke into the house is not known as yet to the police, who have been working hard on the case ever since it was discovered on Sunday morning. It is thought that they scaled the pillars of the front piazza and entered a bedroom by means of an open window while the family were at dinner or were in the drawing room.

PRAISE MRS. BRITTEN FOR SUCCESS OF W. C. T. U. PLANS

PRESIDENT OF THE BOSTON W. C. T. U.

President of Boston Union Has Given Her Time for Six Months to Preparing for Great Convention.

The successful completion of plans for the world's triennial W. C. T. U. convention in this city, beginning Wednesday and lasting five days, is largely due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. F. E. Britten, president of the Boston union and one of the most notable "White Ribboners" in America. She has given most of her time during the past six months in arranging and carrying out details. Besides being president of the Boston W. C. T. U., Mrs. Britten is State superintendent of the Christian citizenship department, which is doing excellent work along charitable and temperance lines.

She is a licensed preacher and will conduct the opening devotional exercises of the convention in Park Street Church, Thursday morning, after which the delegates will go to Tremont Temple, where the business will be transacted. Mrs. Britten will be one of the busiest members of the general committee at the trains and autos and also giving them information concerning the city and convention.

Mrs. Britten will be assisted by a corps of women guides. She is a woman of great executive ability and has the work well in hand. She has been a school teacher, preacher and lecturer and has been connected with the W. C. T. U. for twenty years.

Anticipates Great Success.

In discussing the convention and temperance problems, Mrs. Britten said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"From every standpoint this convention, which is the second ever held in the United States, will be a great success. There is no doubt in my mind but that it will be the most successful ever held since the first one in Boston, twenty-one years ago. The committee has worked diligently for the past six months, meeting once and sometimes twice a week. The expense of the convention will be nearly $10,000, most of which we have raised ourselves from the 250 organized bodies throughout Massachusetts. Most of the 500 delegates will be entertained by friends and members of the W. C. T. U. in and about Boston. Every member of the organization in Massachusetts has shown an intense interest in the coming convention, for it is a great honor to entertain our distinguished sisters from all parts of the world."

Concerning the liquor problem in the United States, on which she is an authority, Mrs. Britten said: "I think the United States will be the first nation to do away with the legalized saloon. The abolition of the legalized saloon in this country is possible within a generation, perhaps sooner. In temperance reform the United States stands at the top. It is making more headway in throwing off the shackles of rum than any other country. This is due to the educational and preventive work being done by the W. C. T. U. with the present generation. In educating the child we save the adult. The work of the W. C. T. U. to-day is almost entirely along the preventive line.

"Inist on Temperance."

"During the past year or two there has been an unusual awakening among the people of New England. There are more individuals and families to-day who are total abstainers than ever before. There are more employers to-day who insist on temperate workmen than ever before.

"Conditions to-day in New England are much better than they were ten years ago. Drinking of alcoholic liquors has greatly decreased among Americans in New England, although there have been more arrests for drunkenness, this is because of the increased number of foreigners who have come into our midst. Portland, Me., has one of the lowest records in regard to drunkenness of foreign birth, although foreigners are greatly in the minority of the total population. There was a total of 6,000 arrests on an average of eight days per day in Boston during that period. The cities of Massachusetts furnished the majority of arrests, as the towns, although the cities contain only one-half the total population. The reason for this is the large number of saloons in the cities."

PASTOR CRANE WARNS W. C. T. U. AGAINST GUILD

In Vigorous Letter Denounces Governor as Friend of Aristocratic Saloons.

RECALLS SPIDER AND FLY.

The Rev. Charles A. Crane of the Pilgrim Congregational Church has written a letter to Mrs. Katherine L. Stevenson, president of the Massachusetts State Women's Christian Temperance Union, in which he says that Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., who has been invited to address the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union this week, is entirely out of sympathy with the cause of temperance, and that he has protected the aristocratic saloon. The letter follows:

"When the Governor of our State was invited to address the coming convention which meets in our city next Wednesday it was certainly unknown to you that the Governor is so far out of sympathy with your purposes and is so far committed against the objects for which you labor that he has pedestrally nullified the laws of the Commonwealth, which he swore he would enforce, and this for the manifest purpose of aiding and protecting your worst enemy—the aristocratic saloon.

Recalls Spider and Fly.

"When these saloon keepers in Boston were about to be punished for their crimes he, with the Legislature, changed the laws which had so long been openly violated so that these criminal saloon keepers might be safe from the demands of common justice and the just penalties of the law. The 11 o'clock law, the Sabbath law, the age limit law and the prohibitory law are all openly and regularly violated with the guilty knowledge and consent of the Governor whom you invited to give the address of welcome to the W. C. T. U.

"When he shall be in the act of delivering that address his feelings will doubtless resemble those of the spider who once delivered an address of welcome to the fly, which address began: 'Will you walk into my parlor?'

Says Guild With Lawless.

"It might be well to remember while this address is being given that he who speaks it has given all his necessary strength to extending the time for the sale of rum in Boston till midnight, and this in those elegant saloons where the rich and the poor and other school boys most frequently assemble.

"There are several other instances where he has identified himself with the cause of lawless class of citizens we have with us the rum seller. You further particularly see the inclosed circular which is being sent throughout the State.

"It may be all right for the chief friend of the saloon to welcome the Women's Christian Temperance Union to Boston, but it would have been quite as consistent to have invited the Hon. Mr. Doyle, superintendent of streets, to do the job. Of course, he is not the Governor, but he certainly has the same relations to your organization."

50,000 SEE CHURCH CORNER-STONE LAID

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. Surrounded by more than 50,000 persons, including prominent clergymen, the Right Rev. Monsignor P. J. McNamara, vicar-general of the diocese, yesterday laid the corner-stone of the new $100,000 Church of St. Ambrose, Tompkins and Dekalb avenues, Brooklyn.

OVER 500 YOUNG MEN SIGN ANTI-TREATING PLEDGE

Mission Fathers Win Harvest of Recruits in Appeal to War on Drink Habit.

The Rev. Father Peter Ronan, rector of St. John's Church of Dorchester, said today that as a result of the mission just ended in connection with that church 550 young men had signed the anti-treating pledge and that new signatures were still coming in.

"The pledge provides that the signer will not accept a treat of liquor nor offer one," said Father Ronan. "It was one of the most successful missions ever held in connection with our church. Between 6,000 and 7,000 confessions were heard. Three were converted to the Catholic religion. Eighty were prepared for confirmation.

"Three hundred young men were added to the membership of the Holy Name Society. Two hundred and fifty young men were enlisted in the Young Men's Sodality of our church.

Avoid Bad Company.

"It was a most remarkable culmination of the week's work and we are all greatly gratified at the result.

Rev. William J. Stanton, head of the missionaries who have been staging the mission, preached the sermon last evening. He said:

"Avoid bad company. It leads to destruction.

"Stop using lewd and bad language in your conversation.

"Bad company means those men who under the guise of friendship insist on inviting you to drink in a saloon with them on Saturday nights or pay-day times.

"Do not think any man is not a friend to you if he does not invite you into a saloon to drink with him.

Wars Against Treating.

"I consider myself a wise young man. I have never lifted a glass of liquor to my lips in my life, and I have no intention of doing so.

"I beg all young men to keep away from the saloon. It is the pitfall of life.

"Do not accept a treat or offer one. Your pocketbook will be heavier as a result, your home will be happier and your life will be more useful."

Some of the Results of a Mission at St. Peter's

Some of the results accomplished by the week's mission of St. Peter's Church of Dorchester, as summarized by Rev. Peter Ronan:

Five hundred and fifty young men signed the anti-treating pledge.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 confessions heard.

Three converted to the Catholic religion.

Eighty prepared for confirmation.

Three hundred young men enlisted in the Holy Name Society.

Two hundred and fifty young men enlisted in the St. Peter's Young Men's Sodality.

FOOTBALL RIOT BOYS FINED $5

The two boys arrested in the clash between the Dorchester and South Boston High School football teams on Saturday were found guilty and fined $5 each in the Dorchester Municipal Court to-day. Lawyer Creed, who appeared for them, appealed, and Judge Churchill ordered the boys held in bonds of $100 each for the Superior Court.

The boys are Thomas W. Kinyan, seventeen years old of No. 290 Harbor street, South Boston, and Joseph A. Lally, seventeen years old of No. 409 East Seventh street.

FOOTBALL POPULAR WITH THESE THIEVES

Football has the call in South Boston, with baseball and tennis next in order of preference, according to the inventory taken by Samuel D. Dunn at his variety store at No. 395 Broadway, early to-day. Mr. James discovered and reported to the police that six footballs, two baseballs and three tennis balls, also ten jackknives and $3.50 in cash, had been stolen from his store sometime between 11 o'clock Saturday night and 7 this morning. The total valuation is $25. A rear window was forced.

HUNT MOOSE IN MAINE TO-DAY

Hunters are crowding the North station to-day, and every train bound for Maine bears many of the sturdy disciples of the moose hunting season has begun. This is the first day on which the big game can be shot legally. The open season for moose began at midnight and continues until December 1.

Many hunters are in Maine to-day, having gone there last week in order to be on hand the moment the law said that they could get after the big game. Reports from the Maine woods declare that moose are more plenty than in many years, and the hunters are anticipating great sport.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Every Monday and Thursday there will appear in the columns of this paper an example of what has been done in farming in the Gulf Coast Country on the Brownsville Line. 10

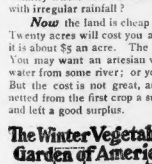
$200 an Acre from Cucumbers.

Mr. John L. Bruce, formerly of St. Louis, is a city man who has found success in the Gulf Coast Country. His place is at Santa Maria, Cameron County, Tex. This Spring he planted four acres of cucumbers. Within eight weeks he had raised and marketed 800 bushels, which were worth $1.00 a bushel—and that is only the first crop. On the same land he will raise a crop of corn this Summer, and after that a crop of tomatoes which will be on the market in Midwinter.

If you will write Mr. Bruce at Santa Maria, he will tell you more of his success. The rich soil, the mild weather all the year, and the plentiful supply of water for irrigation, make it a perfect location for the truck farmer. He would be poor indeed who could not make more than $500 an acre.

Wouldn't you like to have a small farm in the Gulf Coast Country where success does not depend on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.



Take a trip down there and see for yourself—that's the best way. Every first and third Tuesday each month, we will sell round-trip tickets to any point in the Gulf Coast Country and return, at the following rates:

From Chicago,	$25.00
From St. Louis,	20.00
From Kansas City,	20.00
From Peoria,	23.00
From St. Paul,	27.50
From Minneapolis,	27.50

These tickets will be good 20 days and they will permit you to stop over at any point.

Let me send you our books describing the wonderful crops produced in this marvelous country. Don't delay, write me now.

R. R. UNIONS BOOM MORAN AND BROWN

No vote for Moran and Brown is the intention of the International Carvemakers' Union of Albion, who have passed resolutions endorsing both of these candidates.

This is in defiance of two great railway corporations, the New York Central and the Boston & Albany, which will, as in the past, attempt to suppress organization, as is the usual custom when political campaigns are on.

The people do not have to go back many years to recall the time when the working men employed by the railroads were dragooned and obliged, under penalty of discharge to parade the streets of Boston wearing the badge of their employers, as well as the yoke of the corporation.

The Albion carvemakers are employed by the Boston & Albany road, which road is now owned by the New York Central, and their action in thus declaring for Moran and Brown is being followed by other wage earners of the railroads.

Our men recently asked for an increase in wages and were refused, and one of the officers to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter said no effort would be attempted to use their political power against the candidates of the unions, and will vote for a man for the candidates of the common people, Moran and Brown.

The action of the Boston & Albany employes is to be followed by the employes of the Boston & Maine, the Boston Elevated and the various railway unions of the entire state, although an effort is being made to suppress the movement.

Not satisfied with employing at the State House a powerful lobby to control legislation, the railroads have now made this same lobby an electioneering committee, which is going from town and city in an attempt to elect legislators who will do the bidding on Beacon Hill this Winter. To these various paid agents instructions have been given to make every effort to stamp out the movement in favor of Moran and Brown and a big cash chest is at their disposal in the work.

Many organizations of labor have already declared their opinion of Lieutenant-Governor Draper, among these being New England District Council of Machinists, Big State Lodge of Carworkers, also Allston Lodge of Carworkers.

Re-porting one of the best times that they have had for years, the Ninth Regiment of Massachusetts arrived at the South Station at 8 a. m. to-day, after attending the dedicatory exercises of the 71st armory of the Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York. The Ninth men, dismissing the new local quarters of the Sixty-ninth the most attractive and artistic armory that they have ever seen.

The special train which conveyed the regiment arrived at the South Station at 8 o'clock. Companies K, L, H, I and B were drawn up on Atlantic avenue until the arrival of the drum corps. Under command of Major Goodrich, the Ninth, with the companies marched to the armory, where they were dismissed.

NINTH HOME AFTER TIME OF THEIR LIVES

The Prodigal.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—"What's de matter with de Sox?"

"Dey're all right!"

"Whose all right?"

"De White Sox!"

This triumphant cry, in many variations, ran throughout the downtown streets until early this morning. It was a glorious victory and was celebrated by the stalwart supporters of the American League champions and victors in the world's champion ship series.

Charley Comiskey, owner of the Sox, was joy unrestrained and in the Pompeiian room at the Auditorium Annex wine flowed like the water in the fountain. With a roll of bills big enough to choke a herd of cattle and consisting of some $2,000 or more, Comiskey announced there would be no sleep for him for the next twenty-four hours.

"All I can say boys," he hesitatingly remarked, when the cries for a speech became insistent, "is that I'd rather beat any team on earth than Chance's. He's got a fine lot of fellows and I wish I could find him for he's game enough to help me celebrate."

A gigantic demonstration was under way early in the evening on the South Side, on Thirty-first street. Nearly 2,000 White Sox rooters made the rounds of the homes of those world's champions who live in this section of the city. The homes of Dr. Harry White, Manager Jones and George Rohe were visited and speeches were demanded.

Manager Jones in his speech, said:

Worth the Big Title.

"Boys, it goes deep with me to see the demonstrations our friends are making. Every man on the White Stocking team is as proud of Chicago as you are of them, and I want to say to you that it has been the individual work and hearty co-operation of every man that has landed the championship for us. That's a big title—'World's champions'—but you need never fear our club will not live up to it."

Jones then took from his pocket a slip of paper, held it up to the crowd, saying:

"Look at this; a certified check for $15,000, handed me by President Comiskey at the close of the game, as a slight token of appreciation. That money is to be divided equally among the players, and I'll share alike. I thank you and all the other friends whose hearty support has been a vital as good ball playing."

Manager Frank Chance gives the White Sox all the credit in the world for their victory over his team.

Great Series, Says Chance.

"It was the greatest series ever played," said Chance," and we have got to give it to Comiskey's champions. The Sox played grand baseball and outclassed us in this series just ended; but there is one thing I never will believe, and that is that the White Sox are a better club than the Cubs. We did not play our game, and that's all there is to it."

In another fortnight the big games will begin at Cambridge and the undergraduates, respect for coaches and opponents of the game are beginning to question the strength of the Harvard system in comparison.

While the Crimson has been able to use much old fashioned football in carrying the ball, but many doubt if these tactics can be kept up against the stronger teams that will be met from now on.

Harvard has developed her game in the past by the old fashioned rigger. She was the only set together on plays from tackle to tackle between the ends. On the other hand, Yale has used the open game and the middle attack, but he has not had his quarterbacks for the past two years to call on the open shoke. Harvard has used the pass success fully. Several games which the team has used as practice have not yet appeared in public.

It looks now as if the short kick will be the most valuable play in the Harvard code, and with Harvard's pounding string of backs and Kicker Reid behind the line it is almost what they can do. Reid and his associates should be able to make a good part of their game to a very effective degree.

Infantry began to invade the Harvard squad last week and many of the best promising men out of the game for at least two weeks. Among the number was Fairfax, substituted a home in his leg. Then Mason, Appleton and Hallowell have been more or less falling on the ball and on Saturday Nate Hall injured his leg.

Minor injuries are Keeding Starr, Neal, Hall and Hughes each of whom in the hands of these should be playing again by the middle of the week.

FINE ARRAY OF FRENCH BULLS AT ALLSTON

The finest array of French bulldogs in this section of the country will be exhibited at Allston to-day when the first show of the French Bulldog Club of New England will be held.

It will be hour tones at Sudbury Hall this afternoon and evening, as the judging of over two hundred entries will take the of forty, even of that expert, S. L. Goldenberg, who comes over from New York to pick the winners in the different classes. All of the leading importations as well as local notes will be on the arena competing for the silver cups and medals and the coupet then promises to be a really spectacular one. Besides the many costly specimens of the small French breed on the benches there will be a number of the larger breeds of the fascinating little short haired, wrinkled Bostonian.

O'CONNELL AND LUCAS DRAW

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Fifteen rounds, all of them fast and exciting, were fought yesterday in this city by Jeff O'Connell, the English bantam, and Charley Lucas, trainer of Fred Lucas, the welterweight. The contest, which took place on a West Side pier, ended in a draw.

Both men were on their feet at the sound of the last gong. The fight was for the gate receipts and a side bet of $200. About 300 persons paid $2 each to witness the bout. The fighters weighed at 125 pounds at the ringside.

Both men fought a good fight, but Lucas got the bigger share of the punishment.

REULBACH HEAD OF PITCHERS

The honor of leading the pitchers of both the major baseball leagues goes to Reulbach of the Chicago Nationals, with Brown, his running mate, a good second. Plank of the Athletics holds the top place in the American League, but in percentage is low how both the National leaders. Of the first ten pitchers in the National circuit, five are members of the Chicago team, while of the first ten in the American—counting those who have pitched in ten or more games—the White Sox are represented by four.

FOOTBALL IS PROHIBITED

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 15. Football seems to day prohibited for the future in the Strong Grammar School of Fair Haven. Last Saturday the school met an opposing grammar school eleven and Henry Jeanlaer of the Strong school broke his leg in the game. Upon Strong says that the game is too rough for grammar school boys to play.

BOSTON'S BIG AUTO SHOW TO BE HELD MARCH 9 TO 16

BY J. C. KERRISON.

The prospectus of the Boston Automobile and Power Boat Show issued within the past few days by the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association is full of interesting data, valuable to prospective exhibitors. As in previous years, no decorations other than those determined upon by the association will be permitted, and no advertising signs will be displayed in the department devoted to the display of motor vehicles for pleasure purposes. In the commercial vehicle department and that devoted to motor boats and accessories electrical signs are permissible.

The management reserves the right to decline and prohibit any exhibit, exhibitor, or proposed exhibitors or exhibits not approved of by the management, and to permit only such matter and conduct as shall be approved of by the management. The above reservation covers persons, things, conduct, printed matter, souvenirs and emblems, and all things which affect the character of the exhibition. Information and submission of proposed matter to be made to Chester I. Campbell, manager, at No. 5 Park square, Boston. Exhibitors have the right to distribute approved of catalogues and price lists only from the space occupied by them.

A space will be assigned in the basement for the storage of goods, packing cases, trunk and other material connected with exhibits. Laborers can be employed about the exhibition hall, the charge being fifty cents an hour.

No portion of any exhibit can be removed from the hall during the continuance of the show without the written permission of the manager. Goods must be removed on Monday, March 9, after 10 o'clock p. m., and at no other time except upon the written permission of the manager.

Under no circumstances will gasoline or calcium carbide be permitted in the building.

All steam and gasoline cars must be brought to the exhibit entrance of the hall with the caps of tanks removed, where each car will be inspected for presence of gasoline.

Each steam or gasoline car must be provided with a suitable drip pan to prevent damaging the hall floor.

No cars will be permitted to enter the hall which are not provided with a drip pan. This rule will be rigidly enforced.

The blowing of horns, ringing of bells or the making of any other noise detrimental or disagreeable to other exhibitors or patrons will be prohibited.

The show opens Saturday, March 9, 1907 at 7 p. m., and will be open each and every day thereafter (except Sunday) from 10 a. m. until 11 p. m. until and including Saturday, March 16.

Tickets will be admitted daily, with the exception of Saturday, March 9, from 7 p. m. until 12 noon, upon presentation of their business card.

The A. E. Morrison Company of Nos. 89 and 94 Massachusetts avenue is ground to the possession of its first 85-40 Oldsmobile, which has reached this city. The car is unquestionably a handsome-looking vehicle, having many of the features of the most successful and popular predecessor, which did such excellent work in the Glidden tour.

The car is finished in pearl gray. It contains many new and pleasing features. Considerable aluminum is used in the construction of the running board, footboard and much of the trimming being in that metal. A broad band of the same is separating the pomeer from the dash, the latter being of ebony. The assembling of the motor itself, the timer and every mechanical part shows much improvement over those of previous years.

The Pope Manufacturing Company, in line with the policy which it has been following the past few years to market its product through local dealers instead of conducting its Boston branch, has decided to discontinue its Boston branch. Hereafter the Pope line of automobiles will be sold in Boston by the Dodge Motor Vehicle Company, a new company organized to take over local business.

The Dodge Company has engaged salesrooms and offices at No. 891 Boylston street and will carry a full line of Pope cars on exhibition, as well as a complete line of parts for these cars.

The Pope Company will continue its branch at its present quarters, No. 223 Columbus avenue, until November 1st, on which date the new company will begin business.

At Chelsea To-morrow Walcott and Mellody

CRACK WELTERS MEET

Local fight followers believe that they will see one of the greatest welterweight battles ever waged within the borders of the Hub when Honey Mellody and Joe Walcott meet in the ring at the Lincoln A. C. to-morrow night, as two gamer men never swapped punches.

They are the best products in their class ever hatched in this section of the country, and their style of milling is one familiar to the thousands who have seen them perform to need commenting on.

Walcott is champion of the welterweight class and has won his laurels through his natural fighting ability, as there never was a ring character his equal and his career has lasted longer than most pugilists, yet to-day he is well fitted to continue and defend his title, as the last few bouts have been convincing of that fact.

Those close to the ring who know the games and those active in it, believe that Mellody's only chance lies in his youth and ability to force the issue and drain the vitality of the rugged negro. Very few have been able to do it before the Black could reach them with his deadly swings and jolts, as he goes at his opponent with but one object in view—to finish him as quickly as possible.

Walcott's Plan of Action.

He invariably plays for his foe's body with the ultimate purpose of weakening him to that point of forgetfulness that he gaves his foe exposed, then Walcott shakes his fist to the spot, which ends further proceedings.

There is little difference in the power with which both Mellody and Walcott hit. Mellody swings more with a greater sweep to his blow of execution and he is equally proficient with either hand. That he will make little impression on Walcott if he depends on sending for his head is general. It accepted for others have failed. Walcott's bony cranium is the concrete and is more likely to prove injurious to a fighter's hands. It is conceded that to beat Walcott he must be reached in the body, and that is no easy proposition when he never misses an opening himself.

To Mellody the result means a lot. With the weight the fighters made is not the welterweight notch it is close enough to give the winner the same amount of prestige.

Mellody enters the fray with a full knowledge of the way he must meet the lumen and avoid any early deaths. He lacks the experience of his adversary, but his stamina is unimpeached and he has the chance to make or break his reputation.

The preliminary bouts have Billy Glover facing Tom Sullivan of Roxbury and Young Cahill opposing Johnny Sheehan, and both bouts are scheduled for eight rounds each.

Though the bout between Young Corbett and Terry McGovern at Philadelphia on Wednesday night is limited to six rounds it is attracting a lot of attention, for the fans are aware that there will be more mixing in that time. If the bout goes the limit there is no one of the longer bouts between other fighters.

It will be shown how successful some sports have been in their efforts to bring Young Corbett and Terry McGovern back to their old boxing form. The opinion of followers of the game McGovern is no lower than Young Corbett and what his condition may be no one knows. If McGovern takes the fight to the clever Corbett into the ring it is blackguarding Corbett and in that event the chances of McGovern's handlers are much brighter. Should Young Corbett box and keep away from McGovern's swings and rushes, as he cannot help but do, he will win with ease. The latter will find some way of beating this game fighter, however, and it will not be no surprise if Young Corbett again puts Terry away in short order.

O'Brien to Step Two Men.

Jack O'Brien's contract to step Fred Conley and Joe Grim, the two rounders each in Los Angeles tomorrow night looks to be easy, but he is apt to find in Trentich, N. J., Saturday night that Sam Langford is getting better and stronger all the time. Langford has been training for the bout with Sam Berger, who is to be put in Trentich as a setter, and he will find he has a fighter on his hands. It is conceded that to beat Walcott he must be reached in the body, and that is no easy proposition when he never misses an opening himself.

SILENT HINKEY TO AID YALE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 15.—Frank Hinkey, Yale's football captain in 1893 and 1894, arrived here to-day to coach the varsity ends the rest of the season. He has been on a mine in Utah since last Fall.

Carl Flanders, Yale's centre last Fall who has been coaching the centre rush candidates since the season opened to-day, left, to coach the Carlisle Indians for two weeks.

FRESHMAN TRACK MEET.

The annual Fall track meet for the freshmen at Harvard will be held in the Stadium next Monday. The meet will be a scratch one, and will consist of thirteen regular events. Cups will be awarded to the winners of first and second places in each event.

CAKEWALK AT THE COLUMBIA

There will be all kinds of hilarity on tap at the Columbia to-morrow night after the regular burlesque show, when Manager Farren has loose his champion and would-be champion cakewalkers, who have been gathered from near and far, and who are of all shades and nationalities, including even a Chinaman, who will trip the fantastic with a dusky South End belle.

The list of entries will remain open until 10:30 to-morrow night, and judging by the number already entered it will be the biggest, as well as the best-conducted affair of its kind ever held in Boston. The awarding of the prizes will be left to the audience, the same as on amateur nights, so that the claim of favoritism cannot be made by those who feel disappointed in not finding among the winners.

KELLEY SAYS HE MAY QUIT GAME FOR GOOD

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—Manager Joe Kelley of Cincinnati discussed his future briefly and announced his possible retirement. Said he:

"While all those who go into baseball as players are playing for the money they get, and quite a number of umpires confess, and I have not yet filed an application for admission to the home of the speechless. While it may be gratifying to the baseball audience to see a ball game, but that in handing this line of entertainment to the public that I'll do it. It may be that I'm not be a short-sighted athlete after all."

It all depends upon the political situation how I'm to be handled. If things go as they now are planned, President Ebbets will not be in the game next year, and my batting and base running will be good for 140 full games anywhere in the league and the baseball public is not to be fooled by any umpires and absolute fakes forever and how I'm to be handled by the political job. I don't know where the waters come from. I'm all right as well as the next one, but when you have nothing else to do but that are times when I'm tempted to quit baseball. Two or three years ahead and see what's doing. Ferry Sweeney will be in the game next year, and you can see my finish at beating a good little baseball with a heavy stick. So as for the political job—provided our side wins of course—I'll be on hand and will work, but necessarily, be a little more insolent in same.

MAINTENON A WINNER.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—W. K. Vanderbilt's horse, Maintenon, won the prize of the day at Longchamps, will race no more this year. It was eight consecutive win for the year, bringing his winnings for the year up to 1,241,000 francs ($240,000), which is the largest record of sixteen races. Mr. Vanderbilt's winnings on this French turf this year are considerably more than 1,200

Keep in Step With the World and You Will Remain Young

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE is not a woman in the world, nor man either, for that matter, who enjoys growing old.

But woman hates it more intensely than man, because time leaves its mark more plainly upon her. She has a firmly ingrained idea that in growing old she loses her charm.

She is greatly mistaken in this, for no woman need lose charm as long as she makes an effort to keep it. Nor need the average woman age nearly as early as she does.

The trouble with most women is that they go more than half way to meet old age.

They let their minds and bodies stagnate for want of mental and physical exercise.

Unless the mind is kept stimulated and alert it will grow dull and heavy, and at once the effect will be shown in the face.

The eyes will grow lack-lustre, the face lose all vivacity.

If you would remain young you must keep up an interest in what is going on in the world.

Don't sit by and watch the world march past you; march along, too; keep up with progress.

Keep your body young by plenty of sleep, wholesome food and moderate exercise.

Nothing ages a woman so quickly as lack of sleep.

I have seen a woman of forty who looked no more than thirty at 10 o'clock in the evening, but after being up till 3 o'clock in the morning at a ball she looked her age and more the next morning.

The women who keep young are the women who take good care of their bodies and their minds, and get interest in their fellow-beings and keeping up an interest in things.

If you shut yourself away from joy and laughter, of course you will grow old and peevish.

Don't grow away from the young people; make them your friends; enter into their pastimes.

If you follow these rules, old age will come to you so gradually and gradually that you will never be conscious of its inroads until some day you find that you have grown old from a physical standpoint, and that age is not such a bad thing after all.

Nothing will age a girl in such a speedy and unlovely manner as peevishness and lack of vivacity.

Some girls of twenty-five look almost as old as their mothers, and all because they are lazy both mentally and physically.

Don't grow old before your time, girls; keep young in heart and body.

Life is beautiful; get all the joy you can out of it.

Hold youth as long as you can; it is a blessing we all enjoy, but it comes but once.

You can stave off old age for many years if you go the right way about it.

Economy Cook Book for Choice Recipes

THE writer of every recipe printed below receives a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN Economy Cook Book, a substantial indexed blankbook of 128 pages, bound in heavy oilcloth, especially designed to preserve these recipe gems in permanent form.

Write out your favorite household and cooking secrets, and win one of these books. They are well worth having. Address Economy Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, 30 Summer street.

CREAM TARTAR BISCUITS

ONE quart flour sifted with two teaspoons cream tartar, one teaspoon salt, one large tablespoon lard, rubbed thoroughly into the flour; one pint sweet milk, one teaspoon soda. These are always good.

SALAD DRESSING

One dessert spoon mustard, two dessert spoons sugar, one dessert spoon flour; do not heap them. The yolks of two eggs, two-thirds cup of milk (sweet). Stir into a cup of hot vinegar and cook until creamy. Then add one dessert spoon of salt. When cool put in butter the size of an egg. This is very fine. MRS. WILLIAM WHITE. South Main street, Hardwick, Vt.

DELICIOUS APPETIZER

THIS receipt has been used by mother and herself for years. Cut off the tops of four green peppers, take out centers, but don't break through sides. Fill peppers half way with uncooked rice. Then place peppers in a pot, standing up near the sides in a good bien; have enough tomato sauce in pot to cover peppers about half way; baste peppers and rice with tomato sauce frequently. You will find rice and peppers very tender after boiling about an hour, slowly.

MRS. M. METZLER.
No. 37 Mallet street, Dorchester.

ROAST BEEF HEART

SELECT a heart of about four or five pounds. Soak in cold water until the blood is discharged; wipe dry and fill with dressing as for turkey. Lard same as loin of fat salt pork and stick on the outside with toothpicks; put in pan and bake about two hours. Serve with gravy. Very nice and economical.

M. L. MACDONALD.
Bellows Falls street, Roxbury.

BUTTER PIE

ONE cup sugar, two tablespoons flour; mix with sugar. Butter, size of small egg, melted; two eggs, beaten; one cup sweet milk, little salt and nutmeg. Bake as you would custard pie in a deep pie plate. This is a delicious pie.

MRS. CHARLES S. PITFIELD.
No. 118 Newbury street, Lawrence.

ARTIFICIAL OYSTERS

GRATE green corn in a dish; to one pint of this add one egg well beaten, small teacup of milk, one cup of flour, salt and pepper. Mix well together and fry.

MRS. NELSON.
No. 52 Battery street, Burlington, Vt.

CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE

CREAM one-half cup butter with one cup sugar; add one teaspoon vanilla and two well-beaten eggs; two thirds cup milk, and three-fourths cup flour, two teaspoons of cream tartar, one of soda; to the flour spoons grated chocolate, melted over hot water and mixed with one teaspoon sugar. Bake in shallow pans; spread the bottom of each with a thin layer of cake and put together and frost with white of one egg and one cup of powdered sugar.

WEALTH OF NOVELTIES IN THIS SEASON'S CREATIONS IN FURS

TWO STUNNING NEW FUR FASHIONS THAT WILL BE MUCH WORN THE COMING WINTER

THIS season's creations in furs, both domestic and imported, present a variety of choice, limited only by the depth of milady's pocketbook.

Here are two of the most charming of the newest designs.

The coat on the left is a fascinating little ermine coat, whose clever cut is calculated to show off the figure to best advantage. At the waist there is introduced about the short basque a narrow band of white silk, embroidered with rose blossoms, which gives the first tint of the glorious green which forms diamond-shaped medallions rimmed round with gold.

At the back straps cross this belt, which disappears beneath the slightly longer fronts, beneath which it is fastened, so that the coat is held in position, whether worn open or closed.

On the big collar and revers, and again on the sleeves, the broidered silk is introduced, and then there are some buttons, which repeat the beautiful shade of green. The lining is faintly tinged with green.

On the right is shown one of the stylish long stoles of gray squirrel with its effective introduction and bordering fringe of ermine tails, the muff to match also bearing a central group of heads and tails, and a final fringe of the little tails.

Happy Is He Who Learns to Talk the Language of Love

By Dorothy Dix

HERE is good news for romantic and poetic swains, with ardent vocabularies.

The courts have decided that there is a language of love (Cat is only to be taken in a Pickwickian sense, and that a man cannot be held responsible to the foot of the letter, as the French say, for the impassioned things that he says to a woman when he is courting her.

This valuable ruling is the outcome of a Philadelphia lawsuit in which a shrinking violet of a maiden sought to establish her claim to the estate of a young man who had once, in a moment of rhapsody, written to her:

"I am yours to do with as you like. I and all that I have, are yours to do with as you like."

This looked like a cinch to the girl, and upon the young man's death she sued for his property, but the cold, hard ere of the law took a different view of the matter, and in deciding against her the judge made use of the following momentous words:

"Poetic or romantic license is considered an essential privilege of a lover's impassioned rhetoric. In spite of the strength of this declaration, it is probable that the deceased intended to retain some measure of supervision over the actual disposition of himself and his possessions."

Wooer's Promises

DANIEL. A second Daniel come to judgment, for where would poor, ordinary man be if he was held to a strict account for all the thousand promises he makes to the woman he is wooing?

He would be a slave, an idiot, an imbecile, if he undertook to make good one-tenth of the rash vows that he made before marriage.

Who can imagine a man spending the thirty or forty years of married life telling a woman over and over again, hour after hour, in ceaseless iteration, that she was the most beautiful, the most divine, the most entrancing creature on earth?

Yet there probably isn't a man in the world who hasn't told some woman that that was the way he proposed spending the balance of his life if she would marry him.

Can you fancy anything that would bring on paresis as quickly as gazing into another person's eyes. Yet, every lover tells his sweetheart that he asks nothing else of fate but the privilege of beholding those glorious orbs by the month.

Did you ever know—honest—a single man that lived only on his lady love's presence, and who, away from her, was a mere shadow of a man, without interest or heart in anything? Not much.

Language of Lovers

AS far as we can see, Edwin manages to get along pretty comfortably without Angelina, and to take the same interest in his meals, and the stock market and the dope sheet, and his business that he did before he became engaged.

Yet where is the Edwin who has not sworn to Angelina that he spent the entire time when away from her looking at his watch and digging how many millions of years it was between 12 o'clock at night and 8 o'clock the following evening?

All of these assertions belong to the florid language of love—the universal Esperanto—that every lover speaks, and that all of us are in the habit of discounting down to somewhere in and about the real truth.

That a suitor for a woman's hand should speak only in hyperbole, that he should deal in superlatives, that he attribute such imaginary charms to the object of his affections, and make promises impossible to perform is only part of the game.

It is the patter of the barker before the buttes of love and no one really takes it seriously.

When a man tells a freckle-faced, chubby woman that she is the most beautiful creature in the world, she doesn't believe for a minute that he is deceived into thinking her a second Venus. She knows he merely intends her to understand that she suits him and he isn't particular about good looks, anyway.

Must be Translated

SO, when a man in ordinary circumstances assures a girl that her lily-white hand shall never soil itself with labor, she doesn't for a moment think that she is really going to lead a life of perfect idleness and luxury on a fifteen-hundred-a-year salary.

She translates the grandiloquent assertion into meaning that Edwin will keep a cook if they are able, and that if they are not he will split the kindling and bring in the coal to save her, if such domestic chores have to be done.

To the language of love may also be attributed the familiar offer of young people to die for each other, if necessary. It never is necessary, you know, and so the passionate assertion is a safe thing, but it always sounds well and produces a favorable impression.

Millions of men have sworn to women before they were married that they were ready to die for them, who, after marriage made a pretty poor living for them.

Millions of women have likewise declared their readiness to die for husbands for whom they would not get up and cook breakfast or sew on buttons.

They spoke the language of love, which is generally a mighty different proposition from the language of performance and business.

For there is a language of love. The centre recognize it, Tosti sings it, the Musicians sing it. Artists paint its symbol. Romeo whispered it under a gallery. Orlando carved it on the trees. Swinburne is the master of it. But, alas, only the young may learn to speak it, and as we grow old we forget it, and its words have some meaningless to us.

Happy those who have spoken it. Happier still those who have listened to it, and who still treasure in their memory its fond, foolish phrases that were no more intended to be construed literally than a rose was designed to form the staple article in a boiled dinner.

TIPS FOR BUSY HOUSEKEEPERS

TO remove stains from knives, rub with a piece of potato dipped in brickdust, and afterward polish well with dry brick.

When sprinkling clothes that have been washed and have become too dry to iron, lukewarm water should be used.

An ideal duster for knick-knacks, frames, wainscoting and carved work is a large, soft paint brush. It removes all dust without scratching dirty marks behind, as an ordinary duster sometimes does.

A new way of making tea: Nourishing tea for an invalid may be made by using boiling milk instead of water, or a mixture of milk and water. The tea is quite clear and free from grounds is splendid. The ribbon should be well brushed, gently sponged with the cold water and pressed carefully on the wrong side till dry.

A use for coffee grounds: Save all coffee grounds and mix them with the mould of earth in flower pots. They act as a kind of fertilizer, and placed round the roots of plants keep the ground damp. Pansies are also better for similar treatment. Tea leaves can be used in the same way.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1905, by American Journal-Examiner

HE saw the patrolman coming and darted swiftly past him, ready to strike should the man try to stop him.

But the policeman let him pass; he had seen the other man dodging almost among the flames, senseless; it was more imperative to save his life than to attempt to stop his would-be murderer.

The policeman rushed through the smoke and dragged the senseless man, with clothes already scorched and smouldering, away from the fire. The other patrolmen came rushing upon the scene, and with the old "Peace" this half-dragged, half-carried, out from the doomed building into the street.

Into the street as if by magic the news that "Barney's is on fire!" had spread, the units of a mighty crowd from far and near; down the narrow streets; out of the courts and alleys, figures were rushing to the common centre of attraction; the engine came dashing up.

Meanwhile, Marr had rushed out on to the wharf.

Already on the river side of the house the flames were leaping from the windows in streaming pennants, shivering the glass, and the vessels on the river were sounding the alarm; and a fire steamer was coming swiftly up stream. Marr rushed out from the blazing inferno into the cool night air, his one thought to get away as fast as possible from the scene by the boat he had left moored at the steps.

His Mad Flight

He was not alone in his mad flight across the yard to the water's edge.

Out from the blazing building poured swarms of rats, hundreds of them—gray rats and black rats—that had lived in the holes and burrows by the fire. They swarmed across the yard in a dense, squeaking mass, scrambling at each other—snapping at the ankles and legs as he tried to stamp under foot in his mad haste.

Some of the rats reached them; they poured out from the old building, swarmed over the rough pier, uttering fiendish cries, crowding each other in their frantic rush down into the water, or clutching at the edge, half over, with their claws, trying desperately to save themselves.

They invaded Marr's boat, and he beat at them furiously with his oars, but they refused to be driven out in their greater fear of that great red-eyed monster that had invaded their nest of their holes and crannies.

The fireboat was drawing up alongside the wharf, ready to play on the burning house, and, if possible, to isolate the fire. If it ran along and caught the neighboring crowded warehouses it would be impossible to say where the damage might end.

A great arched jet of water suddenly shot out on to the blazing pile as Marr stepped into his boat.

And at that moment the man heard the piteous howling of a dog behind, but in his excited state he had heard without heeding; but now the thought flashed on him, his brain cleared with that blinding, passionate fury burned out, that it was his dog. He had heard the barking of a dog as he struggled with Brandt. It was his dog, trapped in that burning house, doomed unless rescued soon.

What was he to do?

Dumb Appeal

At that moment in the prevailing excitement it would be possible for him to make for the escape unchecked; he could take the boat and get away unseen. But there was his dog—the one creature he cared for, or had cared for since his transplanted nature in that house; he could hear its pitiful cries. With a half groan the man set his teeth and went back.

There was still time to save it; part of the shop was a blazing furnace, and up the staircase the draught of the roaring flames was making it a throat that beckoned the fire into the upper story; but on the front part of the shop the fire had made little headway; the hose playing through the shivered front window kept it at bay there.

Marr rushed through the doorway, half-blinded and choked by smoke and heat.

The blind of the big shop window had been torn down; and lit up by the glow without he could see the sea of white faces facing the street beyond, and the firemen in their glittering helmets playing on the flaming house with the nozzles of the hose-pipes.

He was more than half-drenched as he rushed in the direction of the dog's cries.

He saw what had happened; the animal was trapped in a prison formed of big articles of furniture jammed closely together—bureaux, wardrobes.

"I'm coming, boy!" he cried; and the dog heard its master's voice and gave a whining reply.

Meanwhile the silhouetted, solitary figure moving against the ruddy glare beyond, he had last amid the smoke and steam, had been seen by the crowd outside as he tugged desperately at the heavy furniture, working like a madman to free his dog.

"He's a Man"

A great cry went up:

"There's a man inside!"

And then a woman with her bonnet all awry, wild, disheveled and half-mad, broke from the cordon and pointed a skinny finger through the broken shop window at the frenzied man within, as she screamed shrilly:

"That's Marr—Marr, the murderer! The man who fired the place, who tried to kill my poor husband! Marr!"

And at the words a sudden yell broke from the crowd, as though the news that it was Marr, the murderer—the double murderer—had killed all their pity and horror, and given place to execration.

Marr, working desperately within, with the sweat pouring from him, heard their yells and groans, and he paused to shake a fist at them with a bitter imprecation; then went on with his work again—tugging, straining every muscle, exhausted as he was from his struggle with Brandt, till at last he got one of the great pieces of furniture moved, and an aperture made inside enough to enable the dog to squeeze through.

It jumped up at its master, licking his hands and face in an ecstasy of delight; and the milling crowd suddenly divined the man's purpose; and the yells of execration suddenly gave way to a hoarse cheering.

"He may be a murderer, but, by Heaven, he's a man!" cried some one in the crowd, excitedly.

Then as Marr turned to fly a heavy hand was laid on his shoulder.

While he had been working to save his dog the police had crept in upon him.

Itching Scalp, Dandruff and Falling Hair.

THESE symptoms indicate a diseased condition of the scalp and will always result in baldness if the condition is not corrected.

Every day adds to the number of men and women who have entirely lost their hair because of neglect. The hair can always be saved if proper treatment is administered in time, but after the hair roots are dead renewed growth is impossible. Don't delay until the hair is all gone, for nothing will grow hair on a shiny bald head.

At the Woodbury Institute treatment is given under the direct instructions of a specialist of long experience. Many thousands of cases are treated every year, and success is assured in every case.

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

A DAINTY NEGLIGEE

No. 5,613—The dressing sacque here illustrated is a charming model of grace and comfort and can be made as elaborate as one may desire by the addition of hand work. A Watteau pleat is laid in the back and a broad side effect completes the neck and front. It will be very pretty made of cashmere in some delicate color, with the stole embroidered in white or dotted with French knots. Dimity or lawn simply trimmed with ruffles of the same would develop well. Other materials, such as flannel and cotton crepe, would be equally suitable. The medium size requires 3½ yards of 36-inch material.

No. 5,613—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

WOMAN

"Woman" is the name of a new magazine for women. The first number is just issued. Your newsdealer has it. You can get it from him, and it is worth your while getting it. There is nothing startling about this magazine. There should be nothing startling about a decent magazine for women and the home. But this particular magazine is unique among all the so-called publications for women. You might not like it a little bit, and then, again, it might hit your fancy good and hard.

If you like fiction—good, wide-awake, snappy stories—both serials and short stories—you will like "Woman."
In fact, fiction is the big feature of the magazine.

All the other magazines for women are cast on the same model—a little bit of fiction, a few articles, more or less chit chat, some wise advice, a fashion department and a smattering of general miscellany. "WOMAN" doesn't look any more like this conventional model than a yellow dog looks like a race horse. It is built on new lines for a strictly woman's publication. To know what it is like you will have to get a copy of it. It would cost too much to tell you all about it in this advertisement.

The price of "WOMAN" is TEN CENTS A COPY, and the magazine is a very big one—192 pages.

By the way, two rattling good serial stories begin in this first number and it contains a big lot of other good things. You would do well to ask your dealer for it before his supply is exhausted.

MANY MORE UNIONS CONDEMN E. S. DRAPER

CANDIDACY OF E. GERRY BROWN IS ENTHUSIASTICALLY INDORSED.

Many more labor organizations, in meeting assembled, have taken action condemning the labor record for Eben S. Draper, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and indorsing the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown for that office. They are:

New England District Council.

The New England District Council of Machinists' Lodges is composed of delegates from lodges throughout Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. At its quarterly meeting in Machinists' hall, this city, many of the delegates spoke bitterly against the anti-unionism shown at the Draper factory in Hopedale. Resolutions were adopted condemning Eben S. Draper, and the Massachusetts delegates were directed to report back to their locals, calling upon the members to protest at the polls against Draperism.

The resolutions adopted are as follows:

"Whereas, conditions prevailing at the Draper works in Hopedale are a blot upon American civilization and good citizenship; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that District Council No. 19 urge every machinist throughout Massachusetts to enter his protest against such Czar-like rule by voting against Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor."

Bay State Lodge of Carworkers.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by Bay State Lodge of Carworkers No 102, at its meeting in Brodhine hall, corner of Dover and Albany streets:

"Resolved, that it be the sense of this meeting that every trades unionist in the State should assist in the protest against the unjust conditions prevailing at the Draper factory in Hopedale by voting against Eben S. Draper for Lieutenant-Governor and electing to that office E. Gerry Brown, who has been a member of a labor organization for years.

Commercial Telegraphers' Union

At a largely attended meeting of Boston Local No. 4, Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, these resolutions indorsing the candidacy of John B. Moran and E. Gerry Brown for Governor and Lieutenant Governor respectively, and condemning Lieutenant Governor Draper, were adopted:

"Whereas, the issues of the present State campaign have been sharply drawn by the nominations of Eben S. Draper for reelection as Governor on a platform of labor unions, as against the nomination of E. Gerry Brown, a lifelong exponent of trades unionism, and therefore a consistent candidate for the support of his fellow unionists, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Boston Local No. 4, Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, indorses the candidacy of E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant Governor and recommends that all members of the telegraphic craft use every effort to defeat Eben S. Draper at the coming election and place E. Gerry Brown in the office of Lieutenant Governor.

"Whereas, Curtis Guild, Jr., prior to reelection as Governor of this State, by his inimical and evasive conduct, was responsible for the defeat of the so-called "Overtime bill," which sought to protect women and minors from oppressive working conditions, and by his evasive and inimical attitude toward organized labor in the recent controversy over the regilding of the State House dome, has placed himself in the ranks of the opponents of trades unionism, and

"Whereas, John B. Moran, nominee for election as Governor of this State, has declared himself friendly to the interests of organized labor in their efforts to better their conditions, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Boston Local No. 4, C. T. U. A. indorses the candidacy of John B. Moran and recommends that all members of the telegraphic craft use every effort to defeat the Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., at the coming election, and place John B. Moran in the office of Governor."

Coal Teamsters' Union

Lieutenant Governor Draper, Senato Hilton of Lowell and Daniel W. Lane, candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, were condemned by Coal Teamsters' Union No. 68 yesterday as alleged enemies of labor's interests, and the union urged all members and their friends to use every effort to defeat them in the coming election.

Allston Lodge of Carworkers.

Allston Lodge No. 107, International Association of Carworkers, at an enthusiastic meeting, gave its unanimous indorsement to John B. Moran for Governor and E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant-Governor.

LABOR NEWS

LABOR NEWS — TRADES UNION LABOR COUNCIL — UNION MADE — 96

NOTICE TO LABOR UNIONS.

A concerted movement to elect E. Gerry Brown, the labor union candidate, Lieutenant-Governor in place of Eben S. Draper is taking place throughout Massachusetts.

Unions which take any action in regard to Mr. Brown's or Mr. Draper's candidacy are requested to notify the BOSTON AMERICAN at once of such action, and to send copies of all resolutions adopted. Address

LABOR EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

At the meeting of the District Lodge of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island of the International Association of Machinists, held at 395 Washington street yesterday it was reported that wages are being increased, conditions improved and everything is booming from the union standpoint at every point in the district except at Hopedale. It was alleged that in that place there is not a union machinist in the Draper works, and that the conditions in Hopedale are the worst in the State and the wages the lowest. The meeting adopted resolutions condemning Draper's candidacy for the Lieutenant Governorship.

ARSENAL MEN JOIN.

Two hundred and fifty employes of the Watertown arsenal held a mass meeting in K. of R. Hall yesterday, arranged by Boston branch No. 2 of the National League of Employes of United States Navy Yards, Naval Stations, Arsenals and Gun Factories, whereby every man not already a member of the trade union of his craft may make application for membership.

It was announced that the branch had established permanent headquarters at No. 116 Chelsea street, Charlestown, just outside the navy yard, where the regular fortnight meetings will be held every afternoon for the benefit of organizing the navy yard men. The meetings will all be after 4:15, just after the closing of work in the yards.

This afternoon's meeting will be for the laborers, to-morrow for the machine helpers, Wednesday for the rope makers, Thursday for the official workmen, Friday for the sailmakers, Monday, October 22, for the riggers, Tuesday, Oct. 23, for the boat builders, and Wednesday, October 24, for the millmen.

LABOR NOTES.

G. Edward Pirnn of the Steamfitters' Union was elected treasurer of the Central Labor Union Council yesterday.

A conference of delegates of every building laborers' union in the State has been called for Thursday, 19 at No. 46 Hull street, this city.

District Assembly No. 30, K. of L., original, will hold its convention in Brighton Theatre square, Charlestown, next Sunday afternoon.

To-night the Ward 19 Wage Earners' Club will have a special meeting in its headquarters, No. 1,109 Columbus avenue.

Newsboys' Protective Union yesterday elected Thomas J. Mulkern delegate to the A. F. of L. convention in Minneapolis next month.

Boston Brewery Workers' Union No. 20 last night voted to expel from membership any man who advocates the election or assists the candidacy of Daniel W. Lane for Congress in the Eleventh District.

Delegates were appointed to the Sand and Tar Layers' Union No. 192 yesterday afternoon to see the Mayor and request immediate action regarding non-union laborers being employed on several jobs for the city.

Resolutions of sympathy and indorsement and resolutions condemning Governor Guild and Lieutenant-Governor Draper have been organized labor and calling John B. Moran and E. Gerry Brown all friends.

LIVE SHOPPING PHOTOS IDENTIFIED LAST WEEK

The Original of This Photograph Will Receive a Prize of $2.

And Saturday's Snapshot is Yet to Be Claimed by the Original

THE little daughter of a woman shopper, pictured on Friday, was promptly identified by Mrs. Marcia K. Chamberlain of No. 58 Esmond street, Dorchester.

She had just come out of Jordan Marsh's when the camera man caught her. She declared the photo to be the best she ever had and that the reward of $2 is the easiest money she ever earned.

Every one of last week's photos was identified with the exception of Saturday's —and it is yet a little early for a claimant to appear for that.

When the camera man catches you be prompt to claim the reward of $2. The money is yours when you identify the photo.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, OCTOBER 15, 1906.

Register NOW

Registration for voters who intend to take part in the greatest political battle Massachusetts has seen since the days of General Butler and William E. Russell comes to an end in Boston and every other city on WEDNESDAY NIGHT AT 10 O'CLOCK.

The registration in the towns of the State closes ten days later, or on OCTOBER 27.

No unregistered voter can participate in this great contest, hence the importance of attending to registration at once.

In Boston there will be registration all day to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday at the central headquarters in the old court house, thereby giving all persons who are unable to attend to this duty in their home wards during the daytime a chance to get their names on the voting list.

In the evening, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, there is registration going on in every ward up to 10 o'clock, so that there is no excuse for any man to say on election day that he forgot his duty.

In the other thirty-two cities there will also be registration both afternoon and evening, so, if you have a friend in Boston or any other part of the State who has not registered, ASK HIM TO GO AND DO SO AT ONCE.

This is a people's fight, a battle against legislative corruption, against Republican boss rule, against corporation time-servers, and if you do not attend to your duty then the blame for defeat can be laid at your door.

All over the State the corporations, with the aid both mentally and financially of the Republican party are making every effort to prevent the election of Moran and Brown on November 6.

These corporations fear the searchlight of publicity, and they do not want to let go of their hold upon the State House, where for years legislation has been rushed through to suit their pleasure as well as their profits.

If the corporations succeed in this election, winning the Legislature as well as the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, and you have neglected to get registered so that you may vote, then the blame is yours, and not the corporations'.

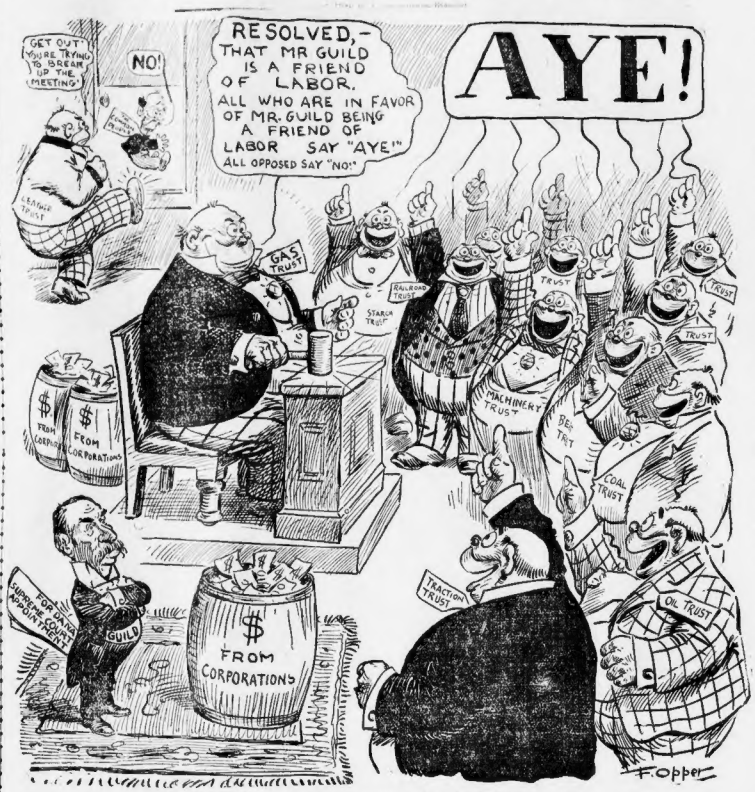
These corporations are contributing to the campaign of the Republican party, and as a reward for their generosity the party will try and elect State officials to return the favor.

Any man who is a citizen and has a right to vote, and wants to put an end to corruption in legislation, and to elect officials who are of the people and for the people, then the duty is plain—go and get registered at once.

DO NOT PUT IT OFF UNTIL WEDNESDAY.

DO IT NOW!

MONOPOLY LODGE VOTES



IT IS UNANIMOUS THAT GUILD IS A FRIEND OF LABOR

The Woman Who Boards

By Winifred Black

MISS EVA TURNER, secretary of the Single Tax Payers' League, is starting the old, old fad in a brand new fit of enthusiasm.

Miss Turner's scheme sounds awfully new when you first hear about it, but it turns out to be the same old plan of anything, anything to get out of being bothered with a home. She wants us to have a big kitchen built in the middle of every city block, and when it's built we must have all our cooking done in that kitchen.

"This will do away with the hideous slavery of housework for poor women and with the monotonous drudgery of marketing, even by 'phone, for the women of the well-to-do," says Miss Turner.

When we have the central kitchen, Miss Turner thinks, mamma can have the whole of the day, after she has made the beds and given the living room the promise of a dusting, in which to improve her mind. Of course, mamma would take all this extra time and use it in improving her mind.

Women who are too lazy and too stupid and too selfish to order their own dinners for their own husbands have such a whole lot of mind to improve, haven't they? And how beautifully alike all the dinners would taste and how tickled to death husband would be with the whole affair? He thought, poor fool, when he married a nice, loving, commonplace, good-looking little bit of nobody in particular that he was at least going to get a home.

What a mistake! Who is he that he should expect the empty-headed little goose he chose out of all the world of women to love, honor, cherish and protect against all the ills this flesh is heir to—who is he to expect that she should give up three or four whole hours out of the twenty-four bothering with the food question? To be sure, he gives up at least eight, and in most cases sixteen or eighteen hours to earning money to take care of her, but what of that? Why should she reciprocate? Let him have his fool notions about a home, such as the mother who bore him used to make for him. If he doesn't like the central kitchen idea, why, there's always the boarding house.

Whenever I meet a woman who boards for a living I wait until I know more about her before I make up my mind as to the sort of woman she is.

She may have some good excuse for it. There's only one excuse, of course, for the married woman who boards, and that is absolute and helpless invalidism. Any other woman who makes her husband eat boarding house food and listen to boarding house gossip is, in the very nature of things, an idle, selfish, silly woman.

No, no, Miss Turner, your central kitchen idea may be popular at women's club conventions, but not a single real American woman will listen to you with any degree of patience.

writing is divided into 2 parts, that wich we do with a pen or pencil, that is penmanship & that wich we do with our branes, that is beeing a author, in other words the 2 classes of writing is Spenseerian and Shakespeerian, there are over 1,000 or more Spenseerian writers in every big city, mostly keaping books & thare was never but one Shakespeerian writer, that was the Bard of Avon.

beeing a author is the hardest kind of writing, beekaus thare are so many authors that if you want to write too you cant find a plais to set down. I am too littel to be a author, so I do the other kind of writing, making words like Cat & Rat & beeing careful to git the shading jest right, the teecher says if i am careful with my penmanship when i grow up I can be a bookkeeper & have a nice warm office to wurk in at nite after my days wurk is all done, but Pa sed to me My son, never mind what the teecher tells you, aim yure money & be a bookmaker instead of a bookkeeper. My Pa sed the differns between a bookmaker & a bookkeeper is that the bookmaker has a nice squair tin box in wich he keeps the bookkeeper's munny after the last race is over, i guess i'll be a bookmaker.

i haven't tould much about writing but I hoap its enuff so I will close now & go hoam to supper.

HOME

Hoam is the plais we go after we go off the streets at dinner time & bed time. hoam is whare the janitor is & whare the milkman runs in the morning with his bill for cream, etc.

hoam in Boston is not so vary much, it is at moast a place whare we can lay our heds if the laundry doesnt forgit to bring the sheets & pillow cases. heer and thare we find a hoam fitted with all that luxury can buy, but in moast plaises we find hoams fitted with all that we can git on time from the furniture stour.

I like our hoam best, beekaus my Pa & Ma are thare, but I must say, tho i am a meer child, that in other ways I have saw other hoams that are nicer in sum ways. our hoam is on the 5th (Fifth) floor, without no elevator. I usually go up on the dum waiter when the janitor aint looking. in our hoam we have 2 mottos, one of them says What is hoam without a carpet sweeper, that is Mas motto, and Pas motto is What is hoam without a sideboard? thats all about hoam.

Little Editorials from the People

"AN EDUCATION IN ITSELF."

W. R. Hearst, Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

As a constant reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN, I wish to express my sympathy for the noble efforts put forth by your paper to educate the masses of people throughout the country, who are (so to say) groping in the darkness for want of just such good, sound, common-sense knowledge printed in so large type and easy flowing language that it seems almost impossible that any one could fail to understand every word and sentence, provided they can read English at all.

To read the editorials from your paper I consider an education in itself, well worth having, and every person who thinks or votes, and by so doing helps to make this country what it is to-day, and will be to-morrow, would do well to read and study every word of them from day to day, year in and year out.

What fair-minded citizen is there who would not take sides with a cause that stands, not for what benefits a few, but for the uplifting of mankind to the highest possible state of civilization and Christianity, that each and every one of us may share in all of the necessities and enjoy the good things and comforts that this world owes to every good citizen.

I would rather be William Randolph Hearst, educating the common people through his press, and spending large sums of money in so doing, than to be the President of the United States, for now he is in a position to do more good. Success to William R. Hearst and the Hearst papers.

1. VOICE OVER 'PHONE—Hello, Mark; this is your neighbor, Howson Lott. Say, Mark; there is a fellow here to whom I owe two hundred dollars; I haven't it in the house and I can't get it from the bank to-night. He demands immediate payment. If I send him over will you pay him?
MR. E. Z.—Sure! Am glad to oblige you!

2. STRANGER—I'm the gentleman to whom Mr. Howson Lott just referred. I was sorry to have to insist on payment at this time of night, but it was absolutely necessary that I have the money.
MR. E. Z.—I am exceedingly glad to be able to serve my neighbor, Mr. Howson Lott. Here is the two hundred, sir.

3. MR. E. Z. (on Mrs. Mark's return)—I think there is something strange about those Howson Lotts. He telephoned about an hour ago asking me to loan him two hundred dollars. He sent his creditor—a tough looking mug—to get the money

4. MRS. MARK—WHAT! Why, you idiot! don't you know that the Howson Lotts are away until their house had been shut up for three days? E. Z., you've been bunced, that's what.

She Discourses on the Danger of Monopoly and the Question of What People Should Eat

"THE MAN" and I sat in a vine-covered annex to a restaurant in Switzerland, and a half-dozen sparrows hopped down beside us to watch for crumbs. "The Man" broke off a piece of bread as large as his thumb and tossed it to the birds.

Immediately there ensued a riot. All the birds wanted the bread and fought for it, but one flew away with it, although it was nearly his own weight.

He perched on an arbor nearby and plumed himself—the Rockef ller of the sparrows.

Then I broke a piece of bread into small crumbs—two dozen bits, the size of a swallow's "swallow," and scattered them on the ground where the small private companies of birds who had been robbed by the "Trust" were scolding about monopoly, and straightway there was peace and happiness in the feathered company.

Which goes to prove that much unhappiness results from too great appropriation of the good things of earth by one.

Meantime other visits to this same restaurant and neighboring ones revealed a curious fact.

The company of a half-dozen sparrows swelled to a hundred, and nearly all the birds were so fat they could scarcely fly with comfort.

The attendants at the tables assured us the birds had become idle loafers and were losing all sense of self-reliance, all pride and all ambition.

The visitors at the restaurants were amused by feeding them and they had learned to depend on others for sustenance, so they ceased to hunt food themselves.

This is precisely what happens to people who are relieved of all personal responsibility by having others supply all their needs.

A Cruel Wrong

IT is one of the greatest wrongs we can do an individual or a class of individuals.

The only way human beings can be really helped is to give them opportunities for self-support.

The greatest act of "civilization" is in depriving the growning generations of their opportunities by allowing one man to monopolize nature's great source of wealth, land, and all it contains for his private purposes and shutting away the thousands who are entitled to the privileges of toil.

Meantime, to return to restaurants, it is curious to me, this love of outdoor, parcenet dining all over Europe.

At one place in Germany the waiters regarded us with amazement and displeasure because we insisted on a table inside the restaurant, near a window, instead of on the sidewalk, at breakfast time.

I love outdoor life in its place, but I love warm food, hot soup and coffee and freedom from dust and insects at my meals.

I love shaded lights and a sense of cosiness and privacy when I supply my body with food.

Eating is not an interesting process to witness. It needs all the graceful and gracious surroundings of a tasteful room and table appointments to keep it from vulgarity.

Sidewalk Eating

AN icecream or a beverage taken at a little table on the sidewalk with the man of your heart, or a good friend, while the music plays and the street roars, is an agreeable and foreign experience for an American.

But to breakfast, lunch and dine in the street is not to my taste, and it seems to be a matter of surprise in Europe that tastes can so differ.

It is remarkable—the continual eating and drinking of all European cities.

Perhaps I have not been as observing in my travels through America, but it certainly seems to me that Europeans give much more time to eating and drinking and indulge the appetite much more frequently than we do.

And the women, past youth, in all these countries, show a resulting rotundity of figure.

Such corpulent middle-aged women as I see everywhere in these lands! women with fresh faces and virile hair and young eyes, but figures all out of drawing with obesity.

It does seem too bad!

A Royal Glutton

MEANTIME it is encouraging to realize that people do not consume as much food as in olden times.

Charles V. of Spain (and ruler of Holland, Belgium, Sicily and America) abdicated his throne in 1556.

He was only fifty-five years old, yet was a decrepit old man, through gluttony and other excesses. He was crippled in his legs and arms and obliged to use crutches.

"He breakfasted at five," so says a famous historian, "on a fowl seethed in milk and dressed with sugar and spices. After this he went to sleep again. He dined at twelve, partaking always of twenty dishes. He supped twice, once after vespers and again at midnight. This was a very heavy meal, the most solid of the four, and he drank immense quantities of beer and wine at each repast."

We have no civilized or cultured rulers on earth who would make such swine of themselves today, despite the fact that all of us eat too much still.

One hundred years from now our descendants will regard our methods of eating as semi-barbarous, so advanced will the world be in its knowledge of these things.
